Spring Enrollment for PM Training Offers New Track for Non-Aligned Dealers

Enrollment for Solomon Coyle Spring PM Training Session Now Open

Introducing a New Track for Non-Aligned Dealers

March 2021, Bluffton, SC – Solomon Coyle is now accepting reservations for Project Management Training classes scheduled to begin in early April. The spring session is available to dealers having a primary alignment with Allsteel, Kimball, Knoll, & Teknion, LLC. Additionally, Solomon Coyle is introducing a new track for non-aligned dealers.

David Solomon, managing principal at Solomon Coyle, shares, “We are very excited to bring the same proven methodology for project management to non-aligned dealers that we’ve provided to over 1,400 individuals within aligned dealerships over the last twelve years.”

Scott Jameson, consultant, and course instructor adds, “Implementing this project management training course for non-aligned dealers allows us to work closer with them and provide access to resources that have not been available to them before now.”

Designed specifically for dealer staff, Solomon Coyle’s PM Training program is delivered through 10 highly engaging, interactive webinars, individualized instructor attention, a wealth of field-proven work tools and supporting materials, as well as a final exam to help measure student comprehension.

The course simultaneously addresses dealer goals for margin protection, customer satisfaction and retention, and talent management. The course is delivered through 10 interactive webinars, individualized instructor attention, a wealth of field-proven work tools and supporting materials, and a final exam assessing student comprehension.

Registration can be done online at the Solomon Coyle website.
