Solomon Coyle’s YE2025 Operational & Financial Benchmarking Survey for Commercial Furniture Distributors is Officially Launched.

Solomon Coyle, the leading provider of research and professional development for the commercial furniture industry, has opened its 2026 Operational & Financial Benchmarking Survey. This annual initiative invites commercial furniture distributors across North America to contribute data to one of the industry’s most trusted and widely utilized benchmarking resources.

The YE2025 survey opened on February 2, 2026, and will remain open through April 30, 2026.

Empowering Dealers Through Data

For years, the Operational & Financial Benchmarking Survey has been a trusted research tool for commercial furniture dealers, providing objective peer comparisons and actionable performance insights. Designed to help dealerships improve financial visibility and operational effectiveness, the survey equips leadership teams with data-backed context to make confident, strategic decisions.

In a competitive environment where efficiency and profitability matter more than ever, this industry-driven initiative offers participants a reliable framework for measuring performance and strengthening long-term business health.

Why Participation Matters

The value of the Operational & Financial Benchmarking Survey continues to grow with increased dealer participation. Key benefits include:

? Customized Insights: Benchmarks tailored specifically to the commercial furniture sector

? Peer Comparison: The ability to evaluate performance alongside similar dealers

? Strategic Planning Support: Data-backed context to guide financial and operational decisions

? Industry Contribution: Helping strengthen the most trusted benchmarking standard in the space

Survey Window and Deadline

The 2026 Operational & Financial Benchmarking Survey is now open and will accept submissions through April 30, 2026. Dealers are encouraged to participate early to ensure inclusion in this year's benchmarking cycle.
